Focus: HOPE deliver special holiday food to low-income seniors

Hundreds of volunteers from community organizations partnered to deliver a special holiday meal to low-income seniors in the Detroit area. The meal includes a holiday entree, a side dish, rolls, and a holiday dessert. The meal was delivered on December 14, 2013, and was part of the HOPE (Hunger Outreach Prevention Education) program.

The program was a joint effort between the Michigan Chronicle, the Detroit Jewish News, and several community organizations. The goal was to provide a holiday meal to seniors who may not have access to the resources needed to prepare a holiday meal at home.

The meals were delivered to seniors in the Detroit area, and included a variety of foods, such as turkey, stuffing, and pie. Volunteers helped to assemble the meals, and delivered them to the seniors' homes.

The program was supported by several organizations, including the Michigan Chronicle, the Detroit Jewish News, and several community organizations. The meal was delivered on December 14, 2013, and was part of the HOPE (Hunger Outreach Prevention Education) program.
